*Upper Middle Quartile: mainly engineers and drivers roles on the field.

In analysing our statistics in granular detail it is clear that our gender pay gap is not due to unequal pay for comparable roles. In fact it is driven by a higher proportion of men currently employed in traditionally male-dominated roles such as electrical and gas trained service engineers. These form a significant portion of our workforce and are roles that are typically higher paid as shown in the middle quartile data.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

We're focused on being a great place to work and continually developing our colleagues so we're extremely proud that in the UK we've been named as a Top Employer every year for the last 6 years.

Our recruitment strategy seeks the very best candidates from those already in the organisation whilst continuing to attract new external talent and develop both. As the largest UK employer in the appliance manufacturing industry, our Young Professionals and Women's Network give groups within our business the support, guidance and help they need as they develop their careers through the business.

This has led to more women in senior positions within the UK management structure including our leadership team. We continue to make progress but everything we do is part of our commitment to improve so we remain a great place to work for all.
